

Delivery POS

When the phones start ringing off the hook- your business needs to be prepared. Customers order food for delivery out of convenience – often because they can't or don't want to leave their house. To ensure repeat business, restaurants need the right order to arrive on time. Unorganized delivery routes and zones can lead to long wait times, food that is cold on arrival and customer complaints. When drivers have to double back to redeliver an order, it is a waste of the restaurant's time and money.

Specifically designed for restaurants with high volume delivery and take out business, the Focus POS system allows employees to review customer order history and duplicate standard orders. In addition, the POS system allows for caller ID data capture to save important contact information about customers to streamline the order-taking process. Delivery management capabilities, such as delivery routing and zoning, ensure that orders are delivered on time and efficiently.
